BiCon is...

... a gathering for the bi+ community, by the community.

It's a place where you can be you.

Most people who come are somewhere under the bi+ umbrella, but as long as you behave, we don't care what you call yourself.

*"No matter where,
no matter who,
BiCon feels like coming home"*

You can come to do stuff - there will be a variety of sessions, from the serious to the very silly, practical ones and talky ones - or just to chill out in a space where being attracted to more than one gender is the norm.

Unlike most Pride events, what happens is generated by the people who come. If you've wanted to find people interested in what you want to do, BiCon is a good place to find them.

It's also non-commercial. It's run by volunteers and ticket prices depend on your resources. Any surplus goes to help enable future events.

We've been going since 1984: it's not just the world's longest running bi event, it's the UK's longest continually running annual LGBTQ+ event!

"BiCon is where I find my tribe", said one person at last year's event. Come and find yours.
